Hello, my name is Billy.

Today I'm going to see a doctor to have a look at my heart. I'm not ill; it's just to see how my heart works.

Would you like to come, too?

I'll show you around. I'm here with my mummy.

The doctor wants to know how big I am.

Stand up straight and tall first.

Now hop onto the scales, and wait for the numbers to change.

Now the doctor listens to my heart with his magic heart tube called a stethoscope.

He also asks mummy some questions.

He writes down some notes in a big folder.

Then I have a test on my heart.

The wires carry messages from my heart to the machine.

The machine draws a squiggly line.

The squiggly line can show the doctor how well my heart is working.

I'm also having a jelly scan.

I'll have to keep very still, even though it tickles a bit!

The machine makes a picture of my heart on a special TV.

Then I get a certificate for taking part.

All finished! Time to go home now.

Goodbye everyone. It was lots of fun!

Don't forget to colour me in and bring me along to your visit!
